

Dezan Shira & Associates: China's COVID-19 Recovery: What Lies Ahead for Foreign Investors

While the attention of the COVID-19 pandemic moves away from China, businesses are slowly getting back to normal in the country. That means relief not just for foreign investors based in the country but also for overseas sourcing and manufacturers around the world who are reliant on Chinese supplies.

But how reliable will the return to normality in China be? How long will it last? What are the options?
