

Vasapolli & Associati: Servicing its Customers in the Covid-19 Emergency (Coronavirus)

Vasapolli & Associati has adopted all the appropriate technical and organizational measures to continue, also in smart-working mode, the regular execution of its activities, in compliance with the extraordinary regulations set out to protect health in the workplace.

We will therefore guarantee, without interruption, the full operation of our consulting services in favour of our Clients and all our professionals will remain fully available for consulting opinions and telephone queries, as well as to carry out all consulting activities in their support.

That being said, the Firm, in order to safeguard the health of its clients and collaborators, favours and promotes the adoption of special precautions concerning meetings of a collective nature (meetings, conferences and the like), adopting solutions for remote communication such as, for example, applications for videoconferencing via the Internet that are widely available on the market and easily accessible (Skype, Zoom and the like).

In the hope that your and our work can be of support in the management of the difficulties related to the extraordinary health situation, we renew our warmest regards.
